

NROTC - COLLEGE PROGRAM STUDENTS

Non-scholarship students may seek a naval commission through the NROTC College Program. Interested students may apply at the NROTC unit in the O'Keefe building on campus. The process includes a review of previous academic performance and interviews with staff personnel. Students accepted into the College Program must complete the naval science curriculum and take a summer assignment between the junior and senior years.

The Navy provides naval science texts. Students who enter advanced standing in the junior year receive a subsistence allowance of $350-$400 per month. College program students are eligible to compete for scholarships ranging from one to three years. Selection criteria are based on academic performance at Georgia Tech and military performance as a College Program student. For information, contact the Naval Science Department at 404.894.4771.
