Each new graduate student should plan to attend one of the Institute’s orientation sessions. Information on these sessions will be posted on the Graduate Studies website at www.grad.gatech.edu. In some cases, individual programs will also hold program orientations. New students should plan to attend both the Institute and the program orientation as the same information is not covered in these separate sessions.